Alaska USA Trust Company participates in ABA Conference

Alaska USA Trust Company recently participated in the Alaska Bar Association's annual conference in Anchorage, Alaska. Trust Company representatives met with members of the Alaska Bar to highlight opportunities in estate planning and trust services.

"Alaska's Trust laws are some of the most liberal in the country, which make them attractive to a wide range of clients, both in and out of Alaska. The Trust Company is a real asset to attorneys and their clients because we not only provide the services they need, but also have a broad range of experience in trust and estate planning issues," explained Trust Company Senior Vice President Fred Miller.

Miller noted that the Alaska USA name builds an immediate sense of familiarity and trust at events like the ABA Conference. "It's helpful for attorneys to be able to recommend a familiar and local name to their Alaska clients, as well as to recommend a trusted organization to their colleagues throughout the United States who are looking for trustee services for clients with Alaska Trusts."
